DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Kirk-Armbruster House is a small two bay long, two story frame dwelling with wing to the east. In form it is almost identical to the house adjoining to the north, though smaller and covered with tan ersatz brick.

Across its facade is a porch, like its previously mentioned neighbor, with turned posts, pierced brackets, tin roof and exposed ogee rafter ends. This building has a balustrade on the outside of its screen.

On the facade, the door is located adjacent the south corner. There are 6/6 sash in the old part of the house.

Its porch south of the wing has been enclosed, a portion of which can be seen from the street.

The building is located close to the neighboring house on the south. On the north is a small section of pailing which differs from its neighbor.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This dwelling is an attractive element in the approach block of George Street. It has little architectural merit except as part of the row of small dwellings.

This simple house was probably built for Mary Jane Simmons early in the twentieth century. Her heirs transferred the property in 1919 to Sarah Armbruster, one of the children of Mary Jane Simmons, who held ownership until 1945.

Like the other houses in this block this one benefits from having access to an alley.
